FRIDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 5.

KEEPING FAITH.—Sir William Napier was one day taking a long country walk, when he met a little girl about five years old sobbing over a broken bowl. She had dropped and broken it in bringing it back from the field to which she had taken her father's dinner, and said she had been beaten on her return home for having broken it. As she said this a sudden gleam of hope seemed to cheer her. She innocently looked up into Sir William's face and said, "But you can mend it, can't you?" He explained that he could mend the bowl, but the trouble he could overcome by the gift of a sixpence to buy another. However, on opening his purse it was empty of silver, and he promised to meet his little friend on the same spot at the same hour next day, and to bring a sixpence with him, bidding her meanwhile to tell her mother she had seen a gentleman who would bring her the money for a bowl next day. The child, entirely trusting him, went on her way comforted. On his return home he found an invitation awaiting him to dine in Bath the following evening, to meet some one whom he especially wished to see. He hesitated for some little time, trying to calculate the possibility of giving a meeting to his little friend of the broken bowl and still being in time for the dinner party in Bath, but finding this could not be, he wrote to decline accepting the invitation on the plea of "a previous engagement," saying, "I cannot disappoint her; she trusted me."

DOMESTIC CHEMISTRY.—If you have been picking or handling any acid fruit and have stained your hands, wash them in clear water, wipe them lightly, and while they are yet moist strike a match and shut your hands around it so as to catch the smoke, and the stains will disappear. If you have stained your muslin or gingham dress, or your white pants with berries, before wetting with anything else, pour boiling water through the stains and they will disappear. Before fruit juice dries it can often be removed by cold water, using a sponge and towel if necessary. Rubbing the fingers with the inside of the parings of apples will remove most of the stain caused by paring. Luk also, if washed out or soaked up from the carpet with cold water immediately when it is spilled, can be almost entirely removed. Luk spots on floors can be extracted by scouring with sand, wetted in oil of vitriol and water. When the ink is removed, rinse with strong pearlash water.
